Information

Title of the resource	Responding to a Critical Incident – a guide for all GAA units and members
Type of resource	This resource is intended to offer all GAA units a toolkit to support them in responding to critical incidents or situations. Support documents are referenced throughout the resource (for example R-1, R-2) all of which are available in the Appendix. All our units are encouraged to review this resource and adapt and adopt it for their own use.
Description	The aim of this guide is to help GAA units at all levels to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• better understand what a critical incident is</li> <li>• develop and maintain their own critical incident response plan to use should a situation arise</li> <li>• follow recommended practices when responding to critical incidents to the best of their capacity</li> <li>• ensure a consistency of care for all members following an incident regardless of the situation/location</li> <li>• identify and access the range of national and local support services that are available to them in such circumstances</li> </ul>
Target audience	All GAA units and members (please note the word ‘unit’ which is referenced throughout this resource, refers to all GAA entities within the Association, be they councils, committees, et cetera, operating at international, national, provincial, county, or club level.)
Compiled by	GAA’s Community & Health Section and National Health & Wellbeing Committee
Organisations/clubs involved	Our gratitude goes to the members of the GAA’s National Health & Wellbeing Committee, Fiona Teague, Susan Kenny, Dr. Brendan Doody, and Justin Campbell, as well as HSE’s psychological services representative Dr. Jennifer Hayes, the National Office for Suicide Prevention, the Public Health Agency (NI), and the private health sector supported the development of this response through the facilitation of a one-day workshop in Croke Park in January 2015. Members of eight GAA clubs and two counties that experienced broad and varied critical incidents in recent years contributed their invaluable experiences through this workshop into the development of this resource. Others too contributed by phone.

Introduction

The GAA reaches into every parish in Ireland and continues to extend its presence overseas with over 400 units now established internationally. Throughout its existence the Association has provided phenomenal support to its members and its communities through good times and bad. It is often during unexpected crisis situations or tragedies that the Association comes into its own by rallying around those affected to provide an appropriate community-based support and response system.

Certain situations, due to their severity or complexity, can overwhelm a club or county's natural capacity to respond. These are often referred to as critical incidents. Since its formation in 2012 the GAA's Community & Health section has received approximately 30 requests annually from GAA units seeking support in the aftermath of a critical incident. The circumstances vary enormously.

The potential list of 'critical incidents' is non-exhaustive (some examples are outlined later in the document). What one unit may consider a 'critical incident' another may not depending on the situation, the knowledge/experience/personnel they have at their disposal, and their capacity to respond. The nature of each response will also depend entirely on the circumstances of the incident – for example whether it happened on club grounds or within the wider community.

Irrespective, it is important to remember that the GAA club or unit is usually just one entity within a community affected by a critical incident (including, perhaps, amongst others, the local school(s), youth club, emergency and primary/secondary care services, churches/pastoral centres etc). No GAA unit is expected to take on the burden of responding alone – help is out there if required. Of the utmost importance is ensuring that any families involved remains at the centre of any response.

Critical Incidents and why to plan for them

People have remarkable coping skills and mechanisms however at times we can all use a helping hand in overcoming the challenging events life occasionally presents us with.

Research shows that people with greater social supports, such as those provided by the GAA, tend to be better adjusted regardless of exposure to a critical incident. (HSE, 2014)

Sometimes a critical incident – one that overwhelms one’s natural capacity to respond – will arise leaving individuals or communities struggling to cope. GAA clubs and counties have proven themselves invaluable in supporting their members’ and communities in responding to an array of tragic and seemingly insurmountable situations.

However, sometimes our units need support in responding to critical situations too.

Preparing a critical incident response plan in advance will better prepare units for the challenges such situations may present. This resource is intended to:

- Reassure clubs of the importance of the natural support system they provide as a community organisation (in fact in most situations nothing more is required).
- Highlight some of the recommended best practises for responding to crisis situations by community organisations such as the GAA.
- Offer a toolkit from which units can develop their own critical incident plan highlighting key roles and responsibilities.
- Help identify appropriate local and national agencies/entities that units can turn to during crisis situations.
- Highlight the supports that are available through the GAA’s own structures.

Hopefully your club, county or members will never need to turn to their critical incident plan once it has been developed. However, having a plan in place during unexpected critical incidents can make highly stressful and painful situations less so.

No template can account for every possible scenario; however, this resource aims to highlight some key principles, roles, duties, and support systems that will better enable your unit make its way through uncharted waters.

Defining a critical incident

The GAA, its clubs, counties, and all other units, provide great support during and after all manner of incidents that may have traumatic or tragic consequences for members and their communities. This natural response, which may include providing a comforting place for those affected to come together in the club house, arranging stewarding around a wake house or providing a guard of honour – usually requiring no external expertise or input. Nonetheless, it has been identified as an invaluable support to those involved. However, some situations can overwhelm even the most experienced and well-prepared GAA officers and units. This resource is designed to offer some assurance about what steps to take in such situations, while also highlighting that other support services – both within the GAA and external to it – are available should they be needed. All it takes is a phone call. That reassurance can be invaluable in times of stress.

A critical incident is any event that is outside the range of usual human experience. It is an event that causes an unusually intense stress reaction which has the emotional power to overwhelm an individual's usual ability to cope. It may impede people's coping mechanisms immediately or in the future following the event.
(GPA/GAA guidelines, 2014.)

Key point – It is normal to experience all kinds of unpleasant feelings, emotions and body sensations following abnormal events. (See R-4 in Appendix to view the GAA/GPA information sheet on normal responses to

Examples of critical incidents may include:

- Death or serious injury on or off the playing field
- Exposure to the aftermath of a road traffic accident e.g. the accident scene, the victim(s)
- Personal loss or injury, real or threatened to a child or adult
- Being violently threatened
- Close encounter with death
- Suicide of a club member (this tragic situation can cause extreme distress and confusion for everyone involved. Guidelines developed by professional services highlighting the most appropriate responses following a death by suicide by sporting organisations are available. Some of this information has been included in a special section on suicide in the Appendix section of this resource.)
- A situation with excessive media interest
- A natural disaster or act of God
- Other incidents not covered above but which are associated with unusually strong emotional reactions

A unit may feel adequately capable of responding to any of these situations and may not feel the need to classify any of the above as a critical incident. Factors impacting on a club's own ability to respond may include:

- Levels of appropriate knowledge or experience in the club – officers/members may deal with such situations as part of their daily or professional lives, e.g. nurses, Gardai/PSNI members, counsellors, doctors, suicide resources officers or trained responders
- Previous experience of successfully handling similar situations
- Good existing links with local support services
- Having a tried and tested Critical Incident Response Plan in place

Our role in responding to critical incidents

Our role in responding to critical incidents

Experts have encouraged following these 5 Key Principles during any crisis situation or critical incident.

1. Promote a sense of safety
2. Promote a sense of calm
3. Promote a sense of self-efficacy and collective efficacy (i.e. the capacity to deal with the situation)
4. Promote connectedness
5. Promote hope

These simple yet effective steps help support personal and collective responses to any critical incident. Abnormal events trigger normal responses that may seem alien to those experiencing them. It is important to normalise these responses. (HSE, A Guidance Document, Psychosocial & Mental Health Needs Following Major Emergencies.)

Supports are out there

It's important to remember that the GAA will usually be just one entity playing a part in any response to a critical incident. Figure 2 outlines some of the other entities that may be involved in a community response. It also highlights the importance of having the affected family or families at the centre of any plan while being consulted on all actions. Other at-risk persons will be to the forefront of considerations too.

Key point – Always consult with those affected to see what level of support they want. A club may feel they are responding effectively but in some incidents this may not be aligned with the wishes of the family.

* In addition to the individuals directly affected, other 'at risk' persons are amongst those most likely to suffer distress as a consequence of an incident. Evidence would suggest that these may include those who:

- directly witnessed death/injury/violence as part of the incident
- are uninjured, but were at greatest risk
- are siblings of those immediately affected
- may blame themselves and/or those who may be blamed by others
- are experiencing instability at home
- have learning difficulties
- have pre-existing emotional and behavioural/mental health difficulties
- are vulnerable due to cultural and/or language difficulties
- have previously suffered bereavement or loss

(GAA/GPA Critical Incident Response Information and Guidelines, 2014)

By playing a part in the above (figure 2) continuum of care cycle a local GAA club can help:

- Minimise the impact of the incident by supporting an appropriate, timely and flexible response
- Provide accurate information about the current situation to those affected and other stakeholders involved in the response
- respond to the phased need of those affected including reassurance about normal responses to abnormal events, grief, or trauma
- Strengthen the sense of unity and the efficacy of the community response
- Offer signposting to more appropriate services as defined by need
- Support the immediate needs of the family or next of kin

Developing your Critical Incident Response Plan

The five steps below offer a guide for clubs when developing their own critical incident response plan. At the time of a crisis there can be a number of tasks a unit may need to carry out. By identifying key roles and duties in advance of an incident there will be a clear statement of who will do what, when and how. A good plan also ensures that no individual is overburdened and that important elements in the response are not forgotten. A sample response plan template is provided in R-1 in the Appendix which units may find helpful.

Step 1- 5:

1. Nominate a designated liaison person and support team to oversee the plan...

- Designated person should be suited to the role. They should have an interest in this type of work and some particular skills (e.g. communication skills, calm approach, good coordinator)
- Nominate an alternative lead person in case designated person is unavailable
- Responsibilities attached to the various roles should be clearly outlined

2. Outline the key roles involved...

These may include:

- Incident liaison person (e.g. club chairperson, health & wellbeing officer)
- Garda /PSNI contact
- Media relation person (e.g. club chairperson, club PRO)
- Community/Support agency contact
- People named in the plan with responsibilities should provide 24 hour contact information

Always ensure those leading out on a response have all the support they need. It can be a stressful role and those coordinating the care of others may neglect their own care. Watch out for each member of the response team.

3. Highlight potential duties when responding to a critical incident... These may include:

- Liaison with those directly affected and if required outside agencies or services
- Obtain information and record actions taken
- If necessary manage any media relations/enquiries (See R-6 in the Appendix for a sample media notification message)
- Monitor the club's response throughout the process
- If necessary organise a debriefing meeting for club members or specific groups (e.g. coaches, players, juveniles, parents). Please see R-10 and R-11 in the Appendix for advice relating to debriefing and what may be involved.

4. Identify relevant resources and services available to the club...

- Each community/county will have various agencies/support groups that may be called on during or after specific incidents. These should be identified and contact details recorded in your plan. When making contact you should inform the external party that you intend including them in your contacts list.
- To facilitate this 'mapping process' two online resources are available that list all recognised services in both the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland:
  - For ROI visit <http://www.yourmentalhealth.ie>
  - For NI visit <http://www.mindingyourhead.info>
- The Appendix to this resource also includes additional support resources for units, such as support letters for members, advice sheets for those affected or managing a situation, guidelines when dealing with the media.

5. Review the plan annually or following a critical incident...

- After managing a critical incident it is good practice to review the procedures and amend the plan in the light of experience and lessons learned. This should also be carried out annually regardless of an incident having happened.

Checklist for reviewing the critical incident response plan

- ☑ Have key roles been clearly identified and tasks clearly outlined?
- ☑ Are personnel suitable?
- ☑ Has contact been made to external agencies?
- ☑ Is the contact list appropriate and complete?
- ☑ Are materials such as press releases, letters readily available, for adaption to suit the particular circumstances?
- ☑ Are telephone numbers on contact lists up-to-date?
- ☑ Has a date been set for a review of the plan?
- ☑ Where will the plan be kept and are people aware of this?

Good practice tips

The following is a summary of some good practice tips to follow:

- Always consult with those affected to see what level of support they want from the club, if any.
- A General Practitioner (GP) should be recommended as the first point of contact if an individual needs help.
- Ensure the response is consistent throughout the process.
- Keep a log of events with times and details of actions and decisions taken. This could be important for any subsequent inquiry which could range from an internal club/ local authority review to a formal inquiry/legal inquiry.
- Be familiar with all the appropriate local services and agencies that are available and ensure that the contact numbers are checked and updated every year. This is really an invaluable exercise. Go to www.yourmentalhealth.ie or www.mindingyourhead.info for a one stop directory of recognised national & local services.
- Ask the questions regarding support services – what can they deliver? And when can they deliver? Do they respond at weekends?
- Only keep open clear lines of communications which will cut out any rumours or miscommunications.
- Be mindful of any relevant procedures in both jurisdictions (ROI/NI).
- To ensure consistency of message, only one person should deal with any media inquiries. (See R-5 in the Appendix for guidelines on dealing with the media).
- If there is a club or county match scheduled always check in with those involved to see how they would like the club to manage fulfilling the fixture.
- Be careful about using the term counselling in the aftermath. People understand it to mean different things so it can be misleading.
- Cases of suicide bring with them a particular set of challenges and very specific recommendations as to how to respond appropriately. Fortunately, there are also skilled services available – both statutory and voluntary – to guide units through such tragic situations.
- See R-7, R-8, and R-9 for good practice guidelines following the death of a member by suicide, and a list of the contact details of those professionals employed by the HSE/PHA to support communities in responding to such tragedies.

Key Point - Remember that the role of the club is primarily to act as a sign-posting service to the supports that are available. Boundaries should be appreciated and getting the balance between what a voluntary entity can offer as opposed to what professionals can is important. Do not take on too much.

National directory for support agencies and services

During a critical incident, it is important to source help and support as quickly as possible for yourself or for anyone the club might be concerned about. If you feel you need further help and support as a consequence of being involved in a critical incident, you are advised to contact:

- Your family General Practitioner or a health centre by visiting the HSE.ie online service provider. In Northern Ireland (NI) go to <http://www.nidirect.gov.uk/index/information-and-services/health-and-well-being/health-services/doctors-dentists-and-other-health-services.htm>

(If it is late in the evening, night time or the weekend contact a G.P Out of Hours Service).
- Samaritans (Official mental health partner & support helpline of the GAA)
Free helpline: a free helpline is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week for anyone struggling to cope.
- 116 123 in the Republic of Ireland
- 08457 90 90 90 in Northern Ireland, or
- Email jo@samaritans.org
- Visit www.samaritans.ie for details of the nearest branch.

For Republic of Ireland contacts:

- visit <http://www.yourmentalhealth.ie/> for your 'one stop' online resource which has been developed and funded by HSE National Office for Suicide Prevention (NOSP).
- Console is a Republic of Ireland support and counselling to those bereaved by suicide. You can call Console on 1800 201890. For more information visit www.console.ie
- ChildLine is a 24-hour confidential phone line for children and young people. Helpline 1800 666 666. For more information visit www.childline.ie

For Northern Ireland Contacts:

- For NI visit <http://mindingyourhead.info/> for your 'one stop' online resource which has been developed and funded by Public Health Agency (PHA).
- Lifeline is a Northern Ireland crisis response helpline service operating 24 hours a day, seven days a week. If you're in distress or despair, you can call Lifeline on 0808 808 8000 and talk to an experienced counsellor in confidence. ## How Does Our Mind Respond After A Critical Incident?

FLASHBACKS	Memories or flashbacks where images or feelings associated with the critical incident come into mind when you don't want or expect them.
NIGHTMARES	Distressing dreams or nightmares about the incident
REMINDERS	Anxiety or distress when you see or hear something that reminds you of the critical incident e.g. T.V., news items, a film, etc.
TRYING TO FORGET	You actively try to forget or put out of your mind thoughts and recollections of the critical incident
CONCENTRATION DIFFICULTIES	Problems with thinking, in concentrating or remembering things
PREOCCUPATION	Preoccupation with the critical incident
UNABLE TO RECALL	You may not be able to remember particular aspects of the critical incident even when you want to.

Why Does Our Mind Respond To Critical Incidents In This Matter?

It is important to remember that these reactions are temporary. They are a result of intrusive and distressing feelings and memories about the critical incident. In an attempt to make sense of what happened to you, your mind is constantly going over the critical incident, bringing it back up, chewing it over, trying to digest it. Naturally this means that you have less mental space available to concentrate on other things.

These experiences are intrusive – they happen whether you want them or not, and you may well come to feel that you have no control over what you are feeling, thinking and experiencing, day or night. Trying to push flashbacks and memories out of your mind will not stop them from coming back, and may in fact make them all the more persistent.

How Does Our Body Respond After A Critical Incident?

PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS

Physical symptoms such as tense muscles, soreness in neck, shoulders and back, trembling or shaking, heart palpitations, diarrhoea or constipation, nausea, headaches, sweating, tiredness, exhaustion and fatigue.

DISTURBED SLEEP

Sleep problems including falling and/or staying asleep, waking in the middle of the night, distressing dreams or nightmares.

IRRITABLE

You may become more irritable or more short-tempered. You may find yourself snapping at people close to you, or losing your temper for trivial reasons.

INABILITY TO UNWIND

You may find that you have an inability to unwind or relax

JUMPY

You may be more “jumpy” than usual or easily startled by loud noises or sudden movements

AVOIDANCE

You may find yourself avoiding situations or thoughts that remind you of the critical incident

LOSS OF INTEREST

Lack of interest in usual activities, including loss of appetite or sexual interest

Why Does Our Body Respond To Critical Incidents In This Matter?

Physical Arousal is a common reaction to critical incidents. After critical incidents adrenaline, a powerful hormone is released to help you to respond adequately to threat or danger. After a critical incident, your body may stay constantly on the alert, prepared for instant action, even though the critical incident has passed. The critical incident has forced you to realise that there is danger in the world, and you are all set to deal with it. It is as if your body has failed to realise that the danger is past. Your body stays on “red alert” and it continues to react as if you are still under threat. With high levels of adrenaline in your body this is why you may feel keyed up, tense, jumpy, irritable and have trouble sleeping.

Avoidance is a strategy to protect yourself from things that you feel have become dangerous, and thoughts and feelings that seem overwhelmingly distressing. While avoidance reduces distress in the short term, it is not always the best longer-term strategy for getting over the critical incident and one is advised to confront their avoidances.

How Does Our Emotions Respond After A Critical Incident?

FEAR & ANXIETY

of being alone or other frightening situations

of damage to oneself and those we love

of being left alone, of having to leave loved ones

of “breaking down” or “losing control”

of a similar event happening again

ANGER & IRRITABILITY

You may feel angry at what has happened, at whoever caused it or allowed it to happen, at the injustice and senselessness of it all, at the shame and indignities, at the lack of proper understanding by others. You may ask WHY ME?

HELPLESSNESS

Critical incidents show up human powerlessness, as well as strengths. Critical incidents can make people feel powerless and out of control

SADNESS

For deaths, injuries and losses of every kind and feelings of loss or aloneness. Your mood may be low you may have feelings of hopelessness and despair, frequent crying spells.

EMOTIONAL

The loss of the ability to feel anything very much, including

NUMBNESS

Affection and pleasure is another common way of trying to cope with painful feelings and thoughts about the critical incident. It may include feeling alienated from people you care about.

Because they have not experienced what you have, it is as if they cannot possibly understand what you are going through.

GUILT

You may feel guilt related to something you did, or did not do, in order to survive during the critical incident. Guilt may be present for being alive, not injured, for being better off than others.

SHAME

You may feel shame for having been exposed as helpless, emotional, needing others or for not having reacted as one would have wished.

NUMBNESS

The shock of the incident can leave you feeling numb and emotionally exhausted.

LOSS OF CONTROL

Following a critical incident, your life, and the lives of those you care about, may have been threatened. You may have felt that you had no control over your feelings, your body, your physical safety, or your life. Sometimes the feelings of loss of control may be so intense that you may feel as if you are “going crazy” or “losing it”.

LOSS OF INTEREST

Loss of interest in people and activities you used to enjoy often follows critical incidents. Nothing may seem much fun to you anymore. You may also feel that life is no longer worth living, and that plans you had made for the future no longer seem important or meaningful.

MIXED-UP

You may find that your emotions are “all mixed-up”.

FUTURE FEARS

You may feel that something dreadful is going to happen to you or your loved ones in the future

Why Do Our Emotions Respond To Critical Incidents In This Manner?

Critical incidents impact powerfully on our minds and bodies. As a result, there are numerous challenging emotions present. The complexity of the human condition tries to make sense of these experiences. Consequently, feelings of the experience tend to come into our minds. It is generally thought that this may in fact be part of a natural healing process as our brains try to come to terms with what has happened.

How Do Critical Incidents Impact On Our Family And Social Relationships?

Flashbacks, nightmares, sleep disturbance, anxiety, low mood, anger and irritability may lead to strains in family and social relationships. Given the intensity of thoughts, feelings and emotions you are experiencing, you are more likely to express your frustration and unhappiness with those closest to you. Consequently, strains in relationships may appear. This is normal. It would be helpful to give your family or close friends this advice sheet so they can try to understand what you are experiencing.

Is there anything that will help my recovery?

Although people may recover in many different ways it is generally thought that the following may help:

- Being able to talk through your feelings.
- Support and understanding from friends and/or family.
- Gradually getting yourself back to work.
- Trying to make sure you are still doing enjoyable or pleasurable activities.
- Spending enjoyable time in others' company.
- Lots of rest and relaxation, to help body and mind to recover.

Is there anything I might be doing that may not help my recovery?

Again, although there are no hard or fast rules, it's generally thought that the following may not be helpful:

- Refusing to think about the critical incident or anything relating to it.
- Refusing to talk about feelings and thoughts.
- Carrying on as if nothing had every happened.
- Avoiding anything that might remind you of the critical incident.
- Becoming withdrawn and not doing anything enjoyable.
- Thinking about nothing other than the critical incident.
- Using alcohol and other drugs to numb the effects of the critical incident

How Long Will These Reactions Last?

You may find that returning to your normal self takes some time and that you have periods when thoughts or feelings related to the critical incident come back. There may be some aspects of your experience you will never forget. Many people find that the nightmares and flashbacks decrease, though this commonly takes up to a year or so.

As the time since the critical incident increases, feelings that there is a danger around every corner also tend to become less. However, many people remain more sensitive to danger than they were previously, though this does not necessarily make people overcautious, perhaps just more realistic than others.

How Will I Know When I've Recovered?

People generally feel they've recovered when they are able to enjoy life again, and when they return to activities they did previous to the critical incident. When the nightmares and flashbacks have decreased. When they do not restrict their activities, or avoid doing something because it reminds them of the critical incident. When you find that you are able to talk about it without becoming very distressed.

Some people seem to recover well without professional help, but with much support and encouragement from friends and family. However, some people find that additional help is needed in order to reduce the physical, thoughts and emotional feelings associated with critical incidents and to put it in the past where it belongs.

When To Seek Help?

- If you don't notice a decrease in the physical, thought and emotional symptoms which are outlined in this advice sheet within a couple of months.
- If you notice the physical, thought and emotional symptoms increase – either they are stronger or more frequent as the weeks go by.
- If you find you are unable to function effectively in your family or working life.
- If you find that you are unable to relate satisfactorily in your family or working life.
- If other people who know you well say that you have been very changed by the experience.

Unrecognised and unattended levels of stress may gradually lessen your quality of life and wreck relationships with work club member s, families and friends. The most serious stress reactions are anxiety, panic attacks and depression with or without suicidal tendencies. Should these reactions occur, you are advised to seek prompt attention from your General practitioner G.P.

From Where Can I Get Further Help?

If you feel you need further help as a consequence of being involved in a critical incident, you are advised to contact:

- Your family General Practitioner
- A Psychologist / Counsellor with expertise in the area of critical incidents / trauma

Conclusion

In this advice sheet, you have read about common reactions to critical incidents and you will have had an opportunity to identify those which particularly fit how you have been feeling. The main message is this: the feelings, thoughts and body sensations you have been experiencing are entirely normal. They are a natural, human reaction to extreme stress associated with critical incidents.

DOs & DON'Ts Following a Critical Incident

DOs

DO remind yourself that your reactions are a normal result of critical incident and will pass in time.

DO take some long slow breaths and remind yourself that you are safe and that the critical incident is over if you feel uncomfortable, afraid or anxious.

DO talk to your family, friends, and club members about the critical incident, as this will help you to get over your feelings.

DO try to get back into your normal routine as soon as possible.

DO make sure that you are doing things that are relaxing and enjoyable.

DO take every opportunity to review the experience within yourself and with others.

DO ensure that you have adequate rest, sleep, a good diet, and regular exercise

DO confront your fears step by step

DO show this advice sheet to your family/those you live with. It will help them better understand what you are going through.

DO Drive More Carefully And Be More Careful Around The Home And With Machinery.

ACCIDENTS ARE MORE COMMON AFTER CRITICAL INCIDENTS: DO TAKE CARE!

DON'TS

DON'T bottle up your feelings

DON'T reject support from family, friends or work club members'

DON'T avoid situations that remind you of the critical incident

DON'T expect the memories to go away – the feelings will stay with you for an extended time

DON'T use alcohol &/or illicit drugs to manage your symptoms

R-5 - Guidelines for dealing with the media following a critical incident

Following a critical incident in which people have died, press interest in survivors and bereaved families can be intense. There are rules and standards the press should follow. All members of the press have a duty to maintain the highest professional standards. The Independent Press Standards Organisation (IPSO) is charged with enforcing the 'Editors' Code of Practice'.

Individuals are under no obligation to speak to the media. If someone doesn't want to speak to them - tell them.

When speaking with the media the following are some helpful tips;

- always make a note of the journalist's name and contact phone number at the outset
- consider appointing somebody as a spokesperson for family - this might be a relative or friend, or your solicitor - some support groups have appointed media liaison people who will field questions on behalf of the support group
- don't do anything in a hurry, whatever the journalist says about deadlines
- ask what they want to talk to you about in advance
- ask them to write down the questions they want to ask you in advance
- give yourself time to think about what you want to say
- write down your answers
- ask the journalist to ring you back at a specified time
- ask if you can see what they wish to quote from you before it goes to press - they may not do this, but it will alert them to your concerns about what they are going to publish
- never say anything 'off the record' unless both you and the journalist have a shared understanding of what this means
- remember that a journalist is entitled to report anything you say, so don't mistake them for counsellors or friends
- bring the conversation to a close if you are uncomfortable

Sometimes journalists will ask for photographs of you, your loved one, and your family. You may wish to provide these, but remember that you are under no obligation to do so. If you do, ensure that you have a copy and ask for the photographs and any other personal items that you pass on to be returned.

R-6 - Sample announcement to the media

This can be used as a template by clubs to be emailed, faxed or given to the media. It may help to decrease the number of media calls and callers to the club.

In some instances, it is not appropriate to provide names or information that might identify individuals.

This announcement will need to be changed based upon confidentiality issues, the wishes of the affected family and the nature of the incident.

R-7 - Good practice guidelines following the death by suicide of a club member

The death by suicide of a member of a club can have a deep impact on club members, in particular on teammates and coaches.

How a club responds to a death by suicide depends on a number of factors including:

- How well known the person who died was to club members;
- How the club has dealt with past tragedies;
- The leadership shown by key club members; and
- Media coverage of the event.

What to do after a suicide:

Do's

Acknowledge the death

Acknowledge that a club member has died. Respect that some families may choose not to describe the death as a suicide.

Acknowledge a wide range of feelings

Acknowledge that individuals will experience a wide range of feelings and emotions as a result of the death.

- Be gentle with each other – we all grieve in different ways
- The grieving process takes months and years not days and weeks
- Don't blame yourself or anyone else for the death

Try to get the balance right

Try to get the balance right between continuing to do normal activities (for example, following the funeral, go ahead with scheduled matches), but also make allowances that motivation and morale may be low among the team.

Try not underestimate young people's natural ability to cope with difficult situations.

Keep an eye out for vulnerable people

Watch out for those who are not doing well or may be at greatest risk, for example:

- Brother and sisters of the deceased person who are also club members;
- Close friends;

- Teammates; and
- Others who may be experiencing difficult life situations at the time.

Anyone who may be particularly vulnerable at this particular time may need extra support. Having access to local support services contact details is important. You can usually call on these organisations for advice.

For more information on local support available in ROI you can contact your Regional Suicide Resource Officer or in Northern Ireland the local Mental and Emotional Wellbeing and Suicide Prevention contacts. (Please see R-8 and R-9 for contact details)

Anticipate sensitive dates on the calendar

Anticipate birthdays, holidays, anniversary dates and other celebratory events where the person's absence from the team will be most felt. Accept there will be times, such as these, when members of the club may benefit from extra support.

Don'ts

Don't focus only on the positive

Do not remember the person who died by only talking about the positive things about them. While it is important to celebrate their sporting achievements and other personal qualities, it is also crucial to talk about the loss. Openly acknowledge and discuss the pain, and heartache, as well as any difficulties the person might have been experiencing, for example mental health issues, but with any discussions also encourage individuals to seek help if they feel the need to talk to someone.

Be careful how you pay respects

Do not do things in memory of the person like:

- Commemorative matches;
- Number on shirts; or
- Naming a trophy.

A Guard of Honour may be organised for other deaths. However, remember that a death by suicide differs from other deaths. Avoid any activities that glamorise or glorify suicide. The challenge is to grieve, remember and honour the deceased without unintentionally glorifying their death.

Do not over-indulge

Around the time of the funeral and immediately afterwards it is important to ask members and friends to try not to overindulge in alcohol, caffeine or other substances. They may make people more vulnerable at this time.

Helpful short and medium to long-term responses

After a death by suicide, clubs have found the following short-term and medium to long-term responses helpful.

Short-term

Right after a suicide those affected often look for the following:

Information

Clubs have found it helpful to identify what supports are available locally to provide advice, support and care at this time. As a result, many communities have developed local support cards outlining services available in the area. In Northern Ireland 'Z Cards' are available for each Health and Social Care Trust area, providing information on local support services.

Support

The first gathering of the team after the funeral, for example, the first night back at training, may be a difficult time for everyone. Coaches have found it helpful to break the team up into small groups and allow some time to talk about their deceased team member.

Coaches or team leaders may wish to prepare for this by thinking through the types of issues that they think will be raised and how best to create a safe place to discuss these matters. Coaches or team leaders should seek the help of local support services if they feel necessary. Some coaches may not feel comfortable in preparing for such a gathering.

The following topics are usually addressed:

- How to support people who are grieving at this time;
- Looking after yourself during this traumatic time; and
- What to look out for, say and do if you are worried about someone else.

Medium to long-term

The medium to long-term develop policies and procedures on suicide prevention as well as other broader areas such as drug and alcohol use. For example, the GAA has developed an Alcohol and Substance Abuse (ASAP) programme which aims to prevent alcohol and drug problems taking hold in clubs.

Policies

Clubs should develop policies and procedures on suicide prevention as well as other broader areas such as drug and alcohol use. For example, the GAA has developed an Alcohol and Substance Abuse (ASAP) programme which aims to prevent alcohol and drug problems taking hold in clubs.

Training

Clubs find it helpful to offer training and skills development to coaches and team leaders. It may be useful to initially look at some form of resilience programmes/training that will help coaches/members. There is also the opportunity to look at putting in place suicide awareness training in the longer term.

Other situations to note

Discovery of a suicide on club grounds

The following steps should be taken with the discovery of a suicide on sports grounds:

- Give or ask for first aid if there is any possibility the individual may be saved or resuscitated.
- Contact the emergency services immediately
- Leave the scene untouched.
- Avoid disturbing any evidence.
- Keep onlookers away.
- Write down the names of all the staff and team members who witnessed the event or discovered the suicide.
- Tell the closest relative – the Gardaí/PSNI usually do this.

Suicide notes on clubhouse

Once you become aware of the existence of a suicide note, for example, a paper note or a suicide message written on a club house wall, leave it untouched and immediately tell the Gardaí/PSNI. After the personal and legal needs of family and Gardaí/PSNI are met, the club has to decide when and how best to remove the note. For example, one club hired a graffiti artist to work with supporters and young people to replace the note with a positive image, along with contact numbers for support services for young people.

Death by suicide of famous sports people

Deaths by suicide of high-profile or famous people can impact on members. Responsible media coverage will help to reduce this risk. Clubs should be aware of the impact an international or national sports star's death by suicide can have, especially on young people who viewed them as a role model. Extra care and supports may be needed at this time.
